Panel Discussion immediately following | FREE ADMISSION

The Americans with Disabilities Act requires all major businesses and corporations to hire people with disabilities. This applies to most government agencies as well, with one glaring exception—the U.S. military, which is not required to comply with the ADA.

Author, disability activist, and blind Air Force veteran Marty Klein will be with us to discuss his feature-length documentary film called “Why Can’t We Serve.” With an eye toward reducing the number of veteran suicides taking place in our country every day, as well as raising the standard of living for all people with disabilities, this film is eye-opening.
